Presented by

To our valued member, Giancarlo Accarino MD:

This is a brief note regarding our upcoming ISES Annual Meeting February 13-17, 2011 in Scottsdale, Arizona. Now renamed iCON -- International Congress for Endovascular Specialists -- our new meeting reflects a number of important formats and educational opportunities.

Over the past year, we have made intensive efforts to expand ISES on a national and international basis to better meet our mission. Many components of the annual meeting will reflect the results of the society's expanded programs. For continued opportunities, society membership involvement is critical. Below are just some of the enhanced programs you will experience at iCON:

- Greater collaboration among cardiology, CT and vascular surgery, radiology, and vascular medicine who today equally embrace endovascular therapies
- Expanded scientific content to include acute stroke, carotid artery disease, structural heart disease, advances in heart failure therapies, thoracic and abdominal aortic pathologies, peripheral arterial disease, biomaterials, diabetic wounds, and venous disorders
- Partnerships with several endorsing societies from the U.S., Europe, and Latin America
- Dedicated Latin American sessions presented in Spanish and Portuguese
- The Thrill of Victory, The Agony of Defeats discussion of unique and challenging cases
- Debut of iLEARN, an innovative wireless forum where attendees can participate real-time in on-line chats and polling, access abstracts and journals, and experience other interactive features

I want to personally invite you to make every effort to join us next month. Your presence and participation will make an additive impact on the meeting's success. If you have not already registered, I encourage you to do so and look forward to welcoming you to the society annual meeting.

Warm regards,

Ted
